

A WARRIOR'S RELIGION

a film by Mani Amar

The South Asian community in Greater Vancouver has been shaken by youth and gang violence. Grim statistics, such as the death of more than 100 South Asian males in their 20s over the past 19 years, show the magnitude of this epidemic.

“A Warrior’s Religion” is a poetic documentary filmed in a manner of an unbiased editorial.

Director Mani Amar believes that the combination of art and activism will bring forth a strong positive message to the audience. By bringing awareness to our youth, we empower them to make positive decisions in life, such as straying away from the gang lifestyle.
